

Designers & Builders Club Depart for International Builders Show

"Good Luck to the Designers and Builders Club"

The Designers and Builders Club will depart for the International Builders Show next Tuesday. We will compete in the National Association of Home Builders' Residential Construction Management Competition next Thursday. We will be competing against 12 other two-year construction management schools from across the country. I will send the results of the competition as soon as they are posted.

If you are interested in a career in construction, be a part of Jefferson State's - Construction & Building Science Program.

The Program Coordinator's information is listed below.
